Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-4, 58-62 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Misselbrook et al (US 5,984,011).

Misselbrook et al teach everything, including a drill assembly B connected to a non-rotating drill string or coiled tubing CT, and a downhole motor M which is powered by pumping drilling fluids therethrough. The means for diverting a portion of fluid away from said drilling assembly is met by valving means V which diverts a portion of fluid away from the drilling assembly while drilling a deviated or horizontal borehole (See Fig. 1, and col. 6, lines 18+). The means for controlling the flow rate is anticipated by col. 6, lines 22- 32, where pump is used to control the flow rate at a rate greater than the flow rate gauge used for drilling, which inherently controls or adjusts the rate of diverted fluid. The valving means also is inherently used for dissipating the energy associated with the diverted fluid, since a valve is known to regulate the flow of gases, liquids, or loose materials through a pipe or aperture by opening, closing or obstructing a port of passageway (see Webster's II New Riverside University Dictionary), which indeed will involve dissipating the energy or the fluid pressure during such operation.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed on 12/09/05 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive since the language such as "diverting a portion of the fluid away from the drilling assembly into the deviated wellbore.....while the drilling assembly drills deviated wellbore" does necessarily be interpreted as the cutting being removed while the drilling operations continue, since the language "while the drilling assembly drills deviated wellbore" merely describe the timing of the drilling, and nowhere in the claim requires such drilling operations being in continuous basis.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 5, 6, 63- 69 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claims 7-27, 70-75 are allowed.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
